Teaching

Doctoral Courses

"Communities, Organizations, and Democracy: Key Challenges in Urban Governance." Crown Family School of Social Work, Policy, and Practice, University of Chicago. Weekly doctoral seminar developing theoretical tools to think about cities at the organizational level of analysis, with a focus on the application of those tools to communities, community organizations, and public bureaucracies.

“Public Organizations.” Graduate Center, City University of New York. Weekly doctoral seminar offering a critical examination of organization theory, blending classical and contemporary perspectives, with a focus on the application of theoretical principles to public organizations.

“Qualitative Research Methods: Observations, Interviews, and Documents.” Department of Sociology, Columbia University. Weekly doctoral seminar covering readings and methodological exercises on five qualitative research methods used in sociology: participant-observation, intensive interviewing, content analysis, focus groups, and the conceptual basis of network analysis.

Master’s Courses

“Social Intervention: Policies and Programs I.” Crown Family School of Social Work, Policy, and Practice, University of Chicago. Weekly lecture/discussion for master’s-level students offering an overview of contemporary social welfare policies affecting low-income families in the United States, with attention to their history.

“Social Intervention: Policies and Programs II.” Crown Family School of Social Work, Policy, and Practice, University of Chicago. Weekly lecture/discussion for master’s-level students examining different analytic frameworks that illuminate the relationships between social problems, the policies intended to solve those problems, and the practices that result from the policies.

“Key Issues in Social Sector Governance.” Crown Family School of Social Work, Policy, and Practice, University of Chicago. Weekly lecture/discussion for master’s-level students that develops key concepts for thinking about the social sector, including issues of public policy, markets, organizational practice, cultural beliefs, and individual action.

“Organizational Theory and Analysis for Human Services.” Crown Family School of Social Work, Policy, and Practice, University of Chicago. Weekly lecture/discussion for master’s-level students that applies diverse organizational theories and perspectives to the analysis of social service organizations.

“Big Data and Public Policy.” Crown Family School of Social Work, Policy, and Practice and Harris School of Public Policy, University of Chicago. Weekly seminar for graduate students that examines the conceptual underpinnings of data science and social science approaches to policy analysis.

“Introduction to Public Affairs.” School of Public Affairs, Baruch College, City University of New York. Weekly master’s-level lecture/discussion exploring key issues in public affairs, including: identifying and providing for publics and public goods; determining policy agendas; making authoritative policy decisions; and defending policy decisions in political arenas.

“Managing Public and Nonprofit Organizations.” School of Public Affairs, Baruch College, City University of New York. Weekly master’s-level lecture/discussion examining and applying central theories and frameworks in organizational management studies, with an emphasis on the public and nonprofit sectors. Uses case studies to analyze and address real managerial problems.

Undergraduate Courses

“How Things Get Done in Cities and Why.” Crown Family School of Social Work, Policy, and Practice, University of Chicago. Twice-weekly lecture/discussion that examines dynamics of interest representation, decision-making, and inclusion/exclusion in the contemporary city, drawing insights from multiple disciplines and substantive domains.

“Introduction to Classical Social Theory.” Department of Sociology, Columbia University. Twice-weekly lecture covering three classical sociological theorists (Marx, Durkheim, Weber), two historical and intellectual contemporaries (W.E.B. Du Bois, Charlotte Perkins Gilman), and some contemporary empirical sociology that utilizes classical theoretical concepts.

“Introduction to Latina/o Studies.” Latina/o Studies Program, Columbia University. Twice-weekly lecture covering the five major Latino sub-groups in the United States, and examining how knowledge about Latina/os is produced in the United States, including proto-colonialist perspectives, Chicana/o- and Puerto Rican-centered scholarship, community-based and radical programs, perspectives on gender and sexuality, and the growing complexity of a broad Latina/o Studies approach.

“Latina/o Communities in New York City.” Latina/o Studies Program and Department of Sociology, Columbia University. Weekly seminar utilizing an ethnographic approach to explore contemporary Latina/o community formations in New York City, including readings of existing ethnographic studies and semester-long student fieldwork projects.
